

Stock Analysis Report

Introduction

This report analyzes three major US stocks: Apple (AAPL), Microsoft (MSFT), and Tesla (TSLA). The analysis includes price trends, P/E ratio, market capitalization, recent developments, and performance indicators.

1. Apple (AAPL)

Price Trend

Apple stock has shown steady long-term growth due to strong iPhone sales and services revenue.

P/E Ratio

Approximately 30.

Market Capitalization

More than $3 trillion.

Recent News

Expansion in artificial intelligence and new product launches.

Performance Indicators

- Strong revenue growth
- High profitability
- Stable dividend payments

2. Microsoft (MSFT)

Price Trend

Microsoft has experienced significant growth driven by cloud computing and AI technologies.

P/E Ratio

Approximately 35.

Market Capitalization

Over $3 trillion.

Recent News

Continued investment in artificial intelligence and Azure cloud services.

Performance Indicators

- Strong earnings growth
- Excellent cash flow
- Market leadership in cloud computing

3. Tesla (TSLA)

Price Trend

Tesla stock is more volatile but has delivered substantial long-term returns.

P/E Ratio

Approximately 150.

Market Capitalization

Over $1 trillion.

Recent News

Expansion of electric vehicle production and autonomous driving technologies.

Performance Indicators

- High growth potential
- Strong innovation
- Higher risk compared to Apple and Microsoft

Conclusion

Among the three stocks, Apple and Microsoft offer stability and consistent growth, while Tesla provides higher growth opportunities with greater risk. Diversification among these companies can help balance risk and returns.